Dogs Need Each Other

Imagine this. You're the only human living with a family of other creatures. Even if your strange family were nice, you would feel lonely. Dogs feel the same way. That's why every pet dog should spend time with other dogs.

Experts say that animals can have friendships, just like humans can. Spending time with other animals helps keep them happy and healthy. When dogs are used to seeing other dogs, they are more social and friendly. They are less likely to get angry or upset. Some dog owners say they cannot have two dogs because it takes too much time and money to care for them. When people can't have two dogs, they should let their dog spend time with other dogs a few times a week.

If people don't spend time with family and friends, they become lonely. It's the same for dogs.
